BUY a Present that will outlast time one to not only gladden the heart to-day but in after years awaken happy recollections JACOB W. GRUBB.

Shor At.—Saturday night an individual who rejoices in the euphonious title of "Gutser" Forsythe, went into Webb's Bellevue Garden, on Market street, and in a few moments had himself mixed up in a first-class "war of words" with Falstaff Webb, the proprietor. After a large consignment of these had been disposed of "Gutser" retired, but came back directly, armed with a mountain howitzer, and wanted to ventilate Webb, and did shoot once with that intention, but his arm was knocked aside by Eck Filan, and the life of a valuable citizen thus preserved for future usefulness. "Gutser" was then arrested and sent to the "lockup."

GEN. ALLEN DAVIS, the vigilant toll keeper at Leatherwood, on the National Road, has a keen nose for West Alexander matrimonial expeditions. Like the war horse in the scriptures, he smelleth them afar off, and when they come under the small exercise the search of the them afar off, and when they come under his official scruting they rarely escape detection. Whenever he sees a vehicle, with a pair of lively horses attached to it, and a subdued looking couple on the inside, come rattling down the road from the direction of Wheeling on Sunday morning, he generally gets his through tickets out, and spares the groom's blushes by announcing the toll to West Alexander before being interrogated. Sometimes he makes a mistake, as for instance when he offered a West Alexander ticket to a gontleman who was driving his mother-in-law out to the Poor House, but these little errors will happen in the best regulated families, and it is no use to mourn over them when once committed.

LAWRENCE BARRETT.-The three ac ragedy "Yorick's Love," was presented t the Opera House Saturday night, with at the Opera House Saturday night, with Mr. Lawrence Barrett in the title role. "Yorick's Love" is not a very complicate tragedy, and is unencumbered with that explicitness of detail and profusion of incidents peculiar to such tragedies. Yorick is a fcomedian of the 17th century, married to a wife scarcely half his years, and she with an adopted son make up his household. Both of the latter are also actors. They, being thrown together/constantly, learn to love each other, which love is detected simultaneously by the manager of the theatre and the leading actor, Walton, who is envious of Yorick's success. A new play is written during the progress of events embodying the very incidents that are daily transpiring, called "The icalous husband" Yorick importunes the manager to cast him for the part of the jealous husband; which is done with great reluctance and to the intense chagrin of Walton, who expected this part, and thus has another incentive to revenge himself on Yorick. He insinuates to Yorick is maddened by jealousy, and in yain attempts to extent from both Mr. Lawrence Barrett in the title insinuates to Yorick is maddened by jealousy, and in vain attempts to extort from both Alice his wife and Walton the status of affairs. Walton steadily refuses to disclose his secret, yet carefully continues to keep Yorick on the "ragged edge" by his hints, adroitly dropped. Matters become desperate. The night for the production of the new play arrives. Yorick in the title role astonishes all by his acting, and he is rapturously received by the audience, while Walton is "green with envy." The lovers in the meantime are preparing for flight the next morning, and Edmund the adopted son, gives Alice, his patrons wife, a letter between acts, notifying her of their desperate strait, and the necessity of their desperate strait, and the necessity of the step they are about to take. This letter between acts of the training the content of the the step they are about to take. This ter Walton receives and gives to Yorick, who in his rage kills Edmund behind the cenes, and then himself.

Mr. Barrett as the jealous husband, gave ample proof of his versatility as an actor. His support was very good in the main. Mr. Plympton as Edmund, was only tolerable. Mr. Grismer as Walton, appeared to a much better advantage, as did also Mr. Bock as theatrical manager. The leading lady, Miss Cummens, was also very good.

The company left for Pittsburgh after the performance.

JOHNSON JAILED.—Geo. Johnson worked at the Upper Riverside mill as a wheeler of ashes until last Saturday, which was pay day, when by mistake he was given an envelope containing $75.75 which was intended for another man, instead of a $10 one. Johnson was missing soon after, but as soon as the mistake was detected a warrant was sworn out before "Squire I Philips and Officer Lee sent out to hunt him up. He was found at the C. & P. depot, Bridgeport, and induced by the officer to come over the line, when he was arrested. The money was found in his possession and returned to the mill owners. Johnson, in default of $1,000 bail, was committed to jail to answer a charge of larceny.
